OTAGO LONG DISTANCE CHAMPS 9 MARCH 2008. PLANNER'S REPORT

Nick Mortimer

The Christmas desktop plan had to be scrapped as Ernslaw One were - and still are - logging the area to the northeast of the Hogburn that had usually been used for the loops at recent Naseby events (this was marked out of bounds on your maps). The net result of this was that all the longer courses had to be routed back down the central Hogburn, avoiding the outward controls, which inevitably meant a lot of road running on the latter part of the courses. The longer courses were always going to get out on the little-used rough open tussock north of the forest and this eventuated. My Controller Ake Fagereng gave very useful comments on variety in leg length and, with his help, I reduced the total number of controls from 70 to 59.

I used the km rates from the 2006 and 2004 events in the Hogburn as a basis for setting course lengths (see table). I was also aware that my gradients were a bit steeper than optimum and expected that to slow things down a bit. So, well done 2008 elites, you ran much faster than your predecessors! For the remaining courses the actual winning times were much closer to my estimates. I hope the course 6 competitors appreciated the improved readability of the blown up map (1:7500 scale).

It's hard to set yellow and white courses at Naseby. I prefer to play safe. The Whites got off the water race road and into the sluicings for while, thus getting a taste of the real Naseby.

Control 333 attracted some comment! This was on red courses 1-5. Ake and I both spent considerable time at this control site before the event and are sure that, given the inevitable simplification of ground features, the map is basically correct. Ake tells me this was confirmed by a couple of elites who returned to the site after the event. The slope is steep and many people were unsure how far up they were. The long cliff to the north was a prominent catching feature. Those who used the small clearing to the SW of the control as an attack point found the correct gully most quickly.

I'd recommend the white-green runnability at Naseby be remapped before it is used again. I think competitors would also welcome some standardisation of rock vs earth bank vs knoll features.

I'll end with some thanks. To Ernslaw One and Stu Francis for access to their land. John Skinner for printing maps. To Jane Forsyth, Mark Lawson, Bunny Rathbone, George McLeod and Brian Buschl for picking up controls. The whole Organising Team - they know who they are - for setting up and running things so well. Controller Ake, we worked well together. Finally thanks so many competitors for being there. The high attendance made it all worthwhile.

School Series 2008

Pat Ehrhardt

A resounding success! Over 70 students competed in most events in the Wednesday night school series. It was great to see the progress made over the five weeks, with kids moving from white courses up the difficulty levels and from running in groups or with a parent to confidently doing courses on their own.

There were very few DNF's, so congratulations to the planners and controllers, and to those participants who were determined to finish courses even if it took them a long time. Thanks to school students Amy Carrick, Fraser Brown, Clarke Fulton and Nicky Crawford who stepped up to take on the challenge of planning courses.

Stand-out results from the following, who all achieved the maximum of 4000 points over the series:

Millie Cowan	Otago Girls
Charlie Ruffman	DNI
Fraser Brown	KVC
Casey Cuthburtson	St Leonards
Anna O'Leary	Tainui
Ryan Cambridge	Kings

In the School team results, John McGlashan and Otago Girls' HS both made the double, winning both the Senior and Junior Secondary sections. Mention must also be made of the Tokomairiro Year 7 & 8 girls whose consistency saw them very convincing winners of their section.

Many thanks to the teacher/ and parent/managers who supported the young people. It was obvious how much difference this made to their motivation. Particular credit to staff from Tokomairiro, who had the additional job of arranging transport from Milton for their students.

Next year we must endeavour to see that the courses at the various events have more consistency, and that the organisation is fine-tuned to deal with large numbers in a short time.
